HORRIBLE WRECK

On K. C. Division, in Which Four Men Lost Their Lives

Operator at Berea Overlooked Orders Causing Two Heavy Freight Trains to Run Together

Engineer Sanford, One of the Victims, Was Nephew of Mrs. D. W. Clark

News was received here Tuesday of a most horrible railroad accident which occurred at White's Station, five miles north of Berea, about midnight Monday night in which four men lost their lives and several others were severely hurt and property loss amounting to perhaps $200,000.

The dead: Arthur Sanford, of Paris, engineer on South bound train No. 913, George DeVore, of Paris, fireman on No. 913, James O'Rourke, of Paris, fireman, John Russell, of Paris, a laborer.

The injured: W. C. Hamilton, Covington, brakeman, W. C. Justice, Berea, Ollie Pike, Paris.

The Lexington Leader gives the following account of the accident which cost so many lives:

Richmond, Ky., March 23.—The bodies of Engineer Arthur Sanford, of Paris, and Fireman George DeVore, of this city, who were killed in the head on collision between north and south bound freight trains No. 76 and special No. 913, on the L & N. R. R., near White Station, were dug from beneath the wreckage late Tuesday afternoon in a terribly mangled condition.

The arms and legs of both were broken in several places. In addition to their heads and bodies being crushed and cut beyond recognition, in addition to the two engines, the tenders, a car of flour, one of trucks, two of railroad steel and several empties, eleven, eighty-ton cars of coal, were heaped in a pile in a cut about 125 feet long, under which the two men were buried.

James O'Rourke, fireman, of Paris, who was removed to the infirmary early Tuesday morning, having almost all the flesh from head to foot scalded, died about 11 o'clock, making the total dead four; and of six one of them, Otto Pike, a brakeman, of Paris, may prove fatal, having suffered a fracture of the skull and a broken shoulder.

Young Hayes, night operator of Berea, whose failure to execute an order to hold one of the trains, was the cause of the collision, has been in an almost prostrate condition since the occurrence. After letting the train out and discovering his mistake, he resorted to every effort to get into communication with some farmer along the line by telephone, in the hopes of having the trains flagged.

Wreckers from each end of the road were at the scene within an hour after the accident with a crew of 300 men and every effort was exerted to have the track cleared by midnight.

More than 1,200 people from here, Berea and the surrounding country went to view the wreckage, which is considered the most damaging railroad wreck the road has ever had. The loss is estimated by conservative officials at from $150,000 to $250,000.

MOST VICTIMS FROM PARIS.

Paris, Ky., March 23.—The death of Engineer A. H. Sanford and his fireman George DeVore, both of whom lived in this city, was heard here with much regret. Nearly all the men injured in the frightful crash were residents or former residents of Paris. Ther were, besides Sanford and DeVore, Conductor Harry Lyons, James O'Rourke, Engineer Joe Bowling, and Brakeman Otto Pike, J. M. Ford, and W. C. Hamilton.

Mr. Sanford for many years had lived at the Fordham Hotel and was one of the most popular engineers on the road. He was a member of Paris Lodge No. 2 P. & A. M. and was a clever and genial fellow. Mr. Sanford is survived by his mother, and several brothers and sisters, all of whom reside in Covington.

Brakeman T. J. Champ, who was one of the crew of the ill fated regular north bound train tells a graphic story of the collision and the heart rending scenes that followed the impact.

Mr. Champ says the block lights at Berea showed a clear track to Richmond, and that Engineer Sanford pulled the throttle and just a few minutes before the crash came, was coming down grade at a lively clip.

Mr. Champ says that he had just left the engine and was retracing his steps to the caboose when he heard the signal whistle of the special, and looking around saw the big headlight coming into sight. He knew Engineer Sanford was unaware of impending danger as the curve in the track prevented him from seeing ahead and realizing that in another moment the locomotives would come together, jumped to save his life, rolled a distance of some sixty feet, after striking the ground and arose unhurt.

As he regained his feet he heard the crash of the engines and could see for an instant through the flash of lights as they reared up and toppled over, the piling up of car after car of loaded freight.

In a moment all was still but for the hissing noise of escaping steam, and he rushed to where the pile of twisted iron, broken timbers and scattered freight seemed to be mountain high, to discover if possible the whereabouts of Sanford and DeVore. He heard for a brief moment cries and groans from beneath the pile of wreckage and soon knew that both men had met a horrible death. The wrecking crew left Paris shortly after the news was received here in charge of general Foreman E. H. Gorey and carried all the available men that could be secured.

Through trains were considerably delayed, being sent around by the Rowland division to Richmond and thence to Corbin.

Brakeman Champ told graphically how Operator Hayes had tried to prevent the collision, after discovering his great mistake, by telephoning to a man, who he knew lived at Berea, to rush with all possible haste to the track and flag the north bound train, but the man's wife was critically ill and he could not leave her bedside.

Arthur Sanford, the Engineer who lost his life in this accident, was a nephew of Mrs. D. W. Clark, of this city.

JIM HEMPHILL,

A Negro, Killed at Ely's Sunday, by Dock Howerton

Dock Howerton, of Ely's Mines, was given an examining trial Monday afternoon before Judge Stamper, charged with killing Jim Hemphill, a negro, at Ely's, Sunday.

The evidence, as brought out at the trial, in substance, was, that the negro, Hemphill, came to the home of Howerton Sunday, in an intoxicated condition, while Howerton and his wife were at the table eating. The negro began to be abusive and insulting, and demanded a cup of coffee, which was served to him. He seemed to be displeased with this and upset the coffee on the table. He then demanded a piece of pie, and Howerton, being afraid of having trouble with him, gave him a piece of pie, which the negro ate. He then pulled a pistol from his pocket and told Howerton he intended to kill him, and punched him several times in the stomach with the muzzle of the pistol. Howerton got out of his way and left the house, and some of the negro's friends came and took him away. Howerton returned to his home again and shortly afterward the negro came back and finding the door closed, attempted to force it open, and as he did so, Howerton fired on him with a pistol, the ball striking him in the right breast, killing him instantly.

After hearing the evidence, Judge Stamper promptly dismissed Howerton, upon the grounds of justifiable homicide, and he was permitted to return to his home.

Howerton was represented by J. D. Main, and W. R. Lay represented the Commonwealth. Howerton is a coal miner in the employ of W. R. Hughes, and looks to be about 30 years of age.

The negro, Hemphill, was a North Carolina negro, and bore a bad reputation, and it was said, had been run out of his native State.

In Old Kaintuck Again!

(From the Jessamine Journal.)
DR. G. M. HENDREN.

Once on a time the river run—
Some three years or more ago,
It's amber stream was wont to run
In one incessant flow
For those whose tongues would get
So dry

They'd be rattling it: their talk
Until this stream could liquify
Those dry spots in old Kaintuck.

Then this river ran so swiftly,
Sweeping all obstacles by—
Until strange as tale of fiction—
Of a sudden it went dry!
There was nothing left to guggle;
Nothing left to give 'em pluck
Like a drink from that old river,
Best beloved in old Kaintuck.

So at first they thought to dam it,
And they dammed the whole ship's crew
Till you breathed the fumes of sulphur,
And the atmosphere turned blue;
But their forceful maledictions
Softened not the blow that struck
Down that old, time-honored custom
Of a "drip" of old Kaintuck.

So they called the stream the "Tiger"
And they surmised it the "Blind,"
As being most appropriate
Of cognomen they could find;
For the "beast" shy and near-sighted,
To corral him was blind luck
As one sought along back alleys
For a "snort" of old Kaintuck.

But there's gladness in the bluegrass,
The old tiger's sought his lair,
And the "wets" will wet their whistles
With the Bourbon and the beer;
So the water-wagon party
Will abate its battle cry,
For the wagon's badly busted,
Sprung a leak and run out dry.

There's no longer need to linger
With a jug behind the door,
Braicing up to go and hustle
For the "unit bill" some more;
Nor to cry, "abas with Bourbon!"
Nor bemoan the beer of buck,
For they sure are going to guggle
In old Nisholsville, Kaintuck.

BRADLEY ON TOP

So Confesses Sadly, But Emphatically the Louisville Post

The Paper That has Re-nominated Edwards.

The Louisville Post, the paper that commands the Eleventh District to re-elect D. C. Edwards to the Congress, is the same that daily assails the President, and misrepresents Senator Bradley. The Post is now driven to confess that Bradley is on top.

The Louisville Post of March 18, writes:

"A Washington telegram to the Louisville Herald says Senator Bradley has prepared a statement to show that the President's friends have not been discriminated against in the distribution of Federal patronage in Kentucky. This statistician undertakes to show that thirty-seven places have gone to alleged Taft men, while the Senator has secured only nine for the followers of Mr. Fairbanks.

No Taft man has been appointed to office in Kentucky unless he has been able to show first of all he was a Hitchcock man.

II.

"In 1907 the Evening Post, voicing the desire of the progressive Republicans of Kentucky, called on the State to put forward the name of Mr. Taft to stand by him to the end.

"This disturbed the Hitchcock conspirators, and his agents in the State condemned the Evening Post for its premature campaign and for disturbing party harmony by its damnable iteration of Taft's name.

"It was this early and constant call for Taft that defeated the Fairbanks followers, and forced the Cortelyou-Hitchcock-Postmasters Ring to give a reluctant support to Taft.

"The men whom the correspondent names as Taft men put in office were not Taft men but Hitchcock men, and took their orders from Hitchcock, even when these orders threatened to the Taft program.

III.

"Two contests arose between Mr. Hitchcock and the Taft supporters in Kentucky. The first was on the floor of the convention. The friends of Mr. Taft in Cincinnati insisted that the friends of Mr. Taft in the Kentucky state convention should not agree to any compromise which would make Senator Bradley a delegate from the State at large.

"On this test vote Mr. L. M. Petty, postmaster at Shelbyville, voted for Bradley and against the Taft delegates. Mr. A. B. Patrick, who was made Marshal in the Eastern district, following the removal of Capt. Sharp, an original Taft man voted for Senator Bradley and against the Taft program in the State convention.

"The postmaster at Frankfort is Mr. Barnes. He was put on the ticket as a Taft man, but when the contest arose in the delegation for the selection of a member for the national committee, Mr. Taft's followers presented the name of Mr. Ernst. Mr. Hitchcock determined to beat Mr. Ernst, and he put up the postmaster from Paducah, Mr. Fisher. Mr. Barnes, under instructions, no doubt, from the Postmaster General, who was on

SEVERAL "DAM" LIES NAILED DOWN

Edwards' Gangsters Advised to be Honest and Tell the Truth

BUT THEY CAN'T DO IT.

A great noise is being made by the Edwards gang about his getting an appropriation to complete Lock 21, 30 miles below this place on the Cumberland. If Edwards had never been in Washington at all, but had as usual, been working politics for re-election, the dam would have received the appropriation just the same as all other uncompleted work. This every one knows, who knows anything about it.

The Herald says this dam will form a pool 30 miles long, and be navigated daily by steamboats. The truth is, Lock 21 is as useless as a fifth wheel to a wagon, without dams completed all along the river to Nashville, and Edwards has failed completely to get a cent on new work.

Any person who knows anything at all about the tonnage of freight on this 30 miles of pool, knows that there is not and can not be sufficient to employ a single steamboat. Every river man knows that in this pool territory there is not a steamboat load of freight a month. It wouldn't pay to run even a small steamboat once a week. An ordinary gasoline boat can handle all the freight with ease. Consequently the completion of Lock 21, so far as steamboating is concerned, is a humbug pure and simple, and is of no earthly benefit to the community. Even now, during high water, when freight is at its best two steamboats have no trouble to handle the freight over a territory extending nearly 150 miles, and often go and come in light.

In the zeal of the Edwards

the ground, voted for Fisher against Ernst. The Ernst men were compelled to withdraw their man, and they presented the name of Mr. Burnham, who was elected, notwithstanding the opposition of the Postmaster General.

IV.

"Mr. Roberts, who was removed from office prematurely, was a strong Taft man. The Taft leaders in Central Kentucky had recommended as Mr. Roberts' successor, Mr. Berryman, a strong Taft man. Their recommendations were ignored. There was an agreement reached between the Senator and the Postmaster General, by which Mr. Bradley was given the Collectorship at Lexington and at Owensboro, and Mr. Hitchcock was given the appointment in Louisville.

BOSWORTH BANQUET.

The business men of Middlesboro gave to State Senator Joe Bosworth a splendid banquet at the Haber Hotel last Tuesday night.

There were 150 present and a most delightful time was had by all present. Quite a number of toasts were given and among them one from Judge F. D. Sampson of this city.

Those who attended from here were Dr. Coffey, Judge Sampson and Editor D. W. Clark.

CORRESPONDENCE.

CROWDED OUT.

We have received several good correspondence this week that are unavoidably crowded out. We regret that we cannot do better in the future.

Crowns of Gold.

In rose and blue and violet,
Through stained windows tall,
Upon the crimson altar-steps,
The Easter lilies fall.
A row of forms is kneeling there,
Sweet brows of angel mold,
White hands upraised in silent prayer.
Soft wings, and crowns of gold,
But lo! upon a nearer view,
Within the altar rail
The Easter lilies all alone
Are bending pure and pale.
Like slender waxen finger-tips
The creamy buds unfold,
And every fragrant blossom wears
A crown of virgin gold.

The Official Organ of the Republican Party in Knox County.

LET THE ELEVENTH ALONE.

Unable to find newspaper apologists of any weight or character in the Eleventh District, the Edwards press bureau in Washington, D. C., presided over by Private Secretary Bogley, has enlisted newspaper advisers, outside the Eleventh District, and even outside Kentucky, to tell the Mountain people whom they should send to Congress.

The Eleventh District is in need neither of apologists nor advisers. Republican to the core, it never does dissolve, much less dishonor, to the party it glories in supporting. Apologist and advisers of the kind, whose Republicanism is spurious, it spurns with indignation.

The Eleventh District gives the majorities that secure Republican Governors for Kentucky. Take away the Republican Legislators it sends to Frankfort, and woful were the sight presented by the Republican party in the State's Legislative Halls. Let the busy body advisers of the Eleventh, in other Districts, and, in other States, do something, themselves, for the Republican party and then, mayhap, their advice, now cheap, untimely, and unworthy of consideration, shall be taken under advisement.

In the selection of its next Congressman, the Eleventh District proposes to mind its own affairs. It does not advise other Districts as to whom they must nominate or elect. Satisfied that Republicans, in every other District, best know their own local needs, and know best how to promote general party welfare, the Eleventh does not obtrude on them any unwelcome advice.

Nor, does it propose to accept uncalled for and unwelcome counsel. Hard up, indeed, for support, must be Mr. D. C. Edwards, when driven to get carpers and critics, outside our limits, to tell the Eleventh it must elect him to Congress, or go to the "demimoon bow-wow's."

Congressman Edwards has been tried and found lacking. Enough of him, has had the Eleventh District. A bright young Mountain Statesman, Hon. Caleb Powers, now seeks its suffrages. Mr. Powers seeks support on his fitness for the office that Don C. Edwards never was as well qualified for. Mr. Powers does not seek the position of Representative in Congress, because of what he has suffered and lost, for loyalty to party, to principle and to public duty.

He seeks the honor with all its heavy responsibilities, because fitted for the office, its trusts and its duties; because whenever tried he has been ever found capable and worthy; because, in one word, the people want him. In sending Caleb Powers to Congress, the Eleventh District will do the party in this State a service fruitful, permanent, inestimable. It shall place Republicanism on a basis immovable. No party is stronger than when it rewards merit and service. Merit, did the Republican party honor, when it made Lincoln its triumphant leader; service, did it reward, when it opened the White House to Ulysses S. Grant.

Merit and service, the Republicans of the Eleventh are now determined to recognize, by sending Caleb Powers to Congress. To busy body advisers and fool critics, the grand and invincible old Eleventh, from picturesque

Mountain height, from smiling valley, and from humble, happy fireside declares: "Hands off, tongues off. When God and gratitude command, we follow our own resolves. Our present resolve is to send Caleb Powers to the Sixty-second Congress."

SENATOR BOSWORTH HONORED.

No firmer hold on his constituents has any public man than Senator Jo Bosworth. Returning from a laborious session at Frankfort, where he showed ability; where he played duty to his District and to the State constantly in the forefront; where he never lost opportunity to vote loyally, as a Republican, for party men and for party measures, Senator Bosworth was honored on Tuesday night by a public banquet from his fellow citizens of Middlesboro.

The banquet given in the Huber Hotel was most flattering success, doing to host and guests, to Middlesboro and to this entire Senatorial District, honor never to be forgotten.

Could any one doubt the success of the undertaking, with Mr. C. W. Grimm, Chairman of the organization meeting, and Mr. A. B. Gilbert, Secretary and Treasurer? That the banquet was representative of the best that Middlesboro's highest class citizenship could afford, is very evident from the managerial list: Reception Committee, Boyd Rice, Robert Van Bebbler, Jno. M. Miller, Chas. I. Dawson, Warren Cunningham, Henry Steele.

Committee on Arrangements, R. J. Johnson, Joseph Kumli, Fred Huber. Committee on Solicitations, W. A. Bowman, J. W. Carter, W. H. Turner, C. P. Cunningham, W. E. Cabell, J. L. Manning, M. S. Hollingsworth, Jno. M. Miller, Wm. Wallbrecht, Sr., W. M. Sampson, P. T. Colgan, Max T. Price. C. W. Grimm acted most acceptably as toastmaster.

Every name, here mentioned, is synonym for personal worth, for civic probity and political integrity. Such, in truth, are the men whom, everywhere he is known, Senator Bosworth counts as friends.

Strong in his home town, Senator Bosworth is a popular favorite, not only in his Senatorial District, but throughout this whole Eleventh Congressional District. He is a popularity winner, not a mere popularity hunter. Success he owes to fidelity, courage and persistency. To him the Mountain people are proud to recognize.

Worthy of the honors already bestowed on him, faithful to every duty these honors have imposed, Senator Bosworth has before him a future most enviable and inviting. Won it, he has, by methods, creditable; and by qualities, admirable, alike in private and public life.

THE CALL FOR JUDGE SAMPSON.

The best there is in Mountain citizenship calls for Judge Sampson to be appointed to the Circuit Judgeship of Knox and Whitely. An exemplary christian gentleman, a studious and able jurist, a kindly and worthy neighbor, Judge Sampson enjoys respect, the confidence and affection of the public, to a degree, almost without parallel and without precedent.

Not one interest, public or private, that are not safe, to a certainty, in Judge Sampson's hands. His everyday life proves devotion to civic and social upliftment.

An ideal Kentuckian, true to his own individual convictions, loyal to religious truths and teachings, he has the broad minded, generous Kentucky respect for the convictions and sentiments of all others.

No wonder that he is beloved, trusted, worshipped, by all who know him thoroughly. "A Roman citizen I am" uttered the ancient dwellers of the matchless city by the Tiber. "An American and a Kentuckian am I," may well exclaim the Hon. Flem D. Sampson, and the exclamation is sure to draw down the plaudits of all hearers.

A MOUNTAIN SUMMER SEAT.

Barbourville is the most attractive town in the Mountains. The gem of the lovely Cumberland valley, it is certainly a seat of Summer delights. With a magnificent river at its feet, with charming hill scenery at stone's throw, Barbourville is a most inviting place for the tourist. Does he look for boating? The Cumberland invites him pressingly. Does he seek relaxation in fishing? The same spacious stream caters to his desires. Or, perchance, he prefers strolling or riding through delightful scenic environs? Barbourville must in that case appeal to him strongly. Barbourville has now, in part at least, the hotel accommodations needed for guests.

The Hotel Jones will, when completed, as every body hopes it may be soon, accommodate many more visitors. Its excellent proprietor and manager, Mr. J. Smith Clarke, has been, all thru the rigors of winter, compelled to turn away, day after day, numerous applicants for rooms. What will be the plight of this hospitable and popular hotel man, when summer brings its travel hither?

Let the Hotel Jones be at once completed; let all Barbourville's hostilities make ready for Summer. Let Barbourville be made the Mountain Capital of Summer delights, of Summer recuperations, of Summer rehabilitation and rejuvenescence. Let Barbourville be what God and Nature calls for, a seat and center of peace and quiet, of rest and recreation in the Season, when repose is best enjoyed.

SENATOR BRADLEY

SCORES AGAIN.

No better service could Senator Bradley do the public service of the Nation in Kentucky than by securing the appointment to such a worthy and efficient Republican as Dr. Turner to the Postmastership of Bowling Green. One of the Senator's noblest qualities is fidelity to friends. More devoted friends has he in consequence, than perhaps, any other public man in the United States. All of his friends rejoice in his securing recognition for so worthy a citizen, so loyal a Republican as Dr. Turner.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT.

The Knoxville Sentinel answers a very common objection of anti-prohibition men:

"The United States internal revenue collectors at Nashville, during the month of February, should be somewhat illuminating to those who claim that more intoxicants are consumed under prohibitory statutes than under the license system. The statistics given out by the collector indicate that exactly the opposite is true. Beer stamp collections by the federal government at its Nashville office during February, 1910, were less by thirty-one per cent than those for February 1909, before state-wide prohibition had gone into effect. The figures were $15,270 for February, 1909, against $11,615 for 1910. The spirit stamp revenue fell off forty-seven per cent. In 1909 the collections were $117,185.61, in 1910 they were $70,200. These figures are pretty good evidence that prohibition does prohibit."

Bartlesville, The Bewitching, Beckons

To all Kentuckians Seeking Health, Wealth and Happiness!

Results For Everybody! Reward For Everybody! Recompense for Every Form of Toil, Mental and Manual, greets Every Seeker of Success.--Oklahoma's diadem of prosperity has no brighter gem than BARTLESVILLE. The giant young Metropolis of North-Eastern Oklahoma offers all Kentuckians the richest opportunities. BARTLESVILLE, a dot on the map ten years ago had, in 1907, a population of 4,215. To-day its population exceeds 15,000; five years hence, it will be 50,000; ten years hence, 100,000.

If you are a manufacturer, get into a city where your efforts at town-building and your enterprise and public spirit will be appreciated and backed up--where a free site will be given you and you will have no investment for land; where your fuel or power will cost half what it is costing you now, and where insurance rate and taxes will be lighter. If your raw material is high-priced, or a mean competition is too hard, or your business too big for its present location, go to Bartlesville. Make a trip out there and investigate the labor supply and all other conditions of business.

If you are a farmer, go and get this good land while it is cheap. It will yield you a large income while you farm it, and when ready to sell it, you can get $100 an acre for the land that cost you one-fourth or one-half that.

If you are a builder, go and erect the dwellings and business blocks needed for the rapidly-increasing population. Rents pay 20 to 40 per cent. on the buildings and you get the increase in the value of the real estate also.

Buy a Lot For a Home Now.--BARTLESVILLE will allow no men to be idle or moneyless. She puts every one to work, puts money in every pocket.

BARTLESVILLE district produces 100,000 Barrels of Oil every day. Mid-Continent oil field produce $25,000,000 in one year.

Bank Deposits of Bartlesville, $3,000,000 in One Year.

PERSONALS Around Town

The life of Lincoln is a story "that never grows old."

Dr. Coffey is in Middlesboro this week on business.

Wm. Baker left Thursday for Knoxville on business.

E. G. Asher, of Pineville, was in town Tuesday on business.

Prof. Stephen's lecture next Monday night will instruct and interest.

J. T. Berry is improving beyond the expectations of everyone, and may get out again soon.

F. D. Sampson and D. W. Clark were in Frankfort and Lexington last Saturday on business.

Judge S. B. Dishman left Tuesday for Philadelphia on a business trip, and will be away for perhaps a week.

Mrs. A. M. Decker, who has been on the sick list for some days past, we are glad to note, is much improved.

Mrs. W. C. Black left Tuesday night to join her husband in Muskogee, Okla., where they expect to make their future home.

Messrs. George E. Williams, Edd Pitman and E. Werners, of Straight Creek, were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Williams, Sunday.

Dan McDonald and family returned from Arkansas last Sunday morning, after a sojourn of six months. They did not like the climate.

All the friends of Union College should turn out en masse Monday night to greet Prof. Stevenson, son of the founder of the College, Pres. Daniel Stevenson.

W. S. Hudson and Frank Baker were in Middlesboro Tuesday night. Mr. Hudson attended the Prize fight and reports that he enjoyed it very much.

Prof. Stevenson is a well known historical author, being the author of John Calvin, the Statesman, a life of Andrew Jackson and other volumes and articles.

Misses Alma Faulkner and Lillie Albright returned last Saturday from Lexington, where they have been in school, but both have been quite ill and had to return home.

Mr. George McCombs, of Brownsville, was here last Tuesday representing the Commissioner of Agriculture and arranged to organize a corn grower's contest among our farmers.

No speaker of to-day can treat the life of Lincoln more sympathetically than Prof. Stevenson. He is brilliant in his style as a speaker, and profound in his researches as a historian.

Mr. Andrew Decker Jr., who is representing the Swan-Abram Hat Co., of Louisville, in this section of the State, left Sunday morning for that place, to look over his samples and become more familiar with his business.

LOCAL LOOM BREVITIES.

Gardening is in full headway now.

This month has been the prettiest March we ever remember of seeing.

REAL ESTATE SALES

Mrs. Nimrod Lunsford has purchased the J. H. Catron property adjoining her Main Street residence for $3,000. Mr. Catron purchased the J. H. Gregory property on North Main Street for $720. Mr. Gregory has moved into the H. T. Brown house on School Street.

SIXTEEN YEARS

Of Success in Millinery--32nd Semi-Annual Opening Last Tuesday.

Last Tuesday, Miss Sallie Hoskins marked her 32nd semi-annual opening. For sixteen years, Spring and Fall, Miss Hoskins has searched the world over for fashions in head gear for the fair sex, until her business has grown to such proportions, that her display this year resembles a "Little Paris" in all its splendor. In these sixteen years Miss Hoskins has, by her indomitable will and persistent energy, put herself in the front rank in fashion study, and as a monument to her industry and pluck, erected a beautiful two-story brick, fashion emporium, in the business center of our city.

We presume there is not a woman in Barboursville, who has the big head, but that Miss Sallie has a hat big enough for her cranium; and her display of Easter hats, is a star in her crown, as a millinery expert. Miss Sallie deserves great credit for the push and energy, which she has displayed, in placing before the ladies of Barboursville, the "Little Paris" Fashion Bazaar--her 32nd semi-annual opening in 1910.

MORE ROOM PROVIDED.

Frankfort, Ky., Mar. 23, 1910.

Hon. J. T. Stamper,
Judge Knox County Court,
Barboursville, Ky.

Dear Sir:

It is thought proper by the Kentucky State Board of Control for Charitable Institutions to inform you, and through you, the people of your county and district, that the new, large and commodious building made possible by appropriation of the Legislature, at the Kentucky Institution for Feeble-Minded Children, at Frankfort, Ky., is now completed and ready for the reception of feeble-minded children from all parts of the State, who have been so adjudged by our courts.

An examination of the records of this Institution reveals the fact that something like 75 per cent of the inmates of this Institution are from some four or five of the most populous counties in the State, which fact leads us to conclude that very many counties in the State are not reaping the benefits that their ratio of population and feeble-minded deserve. This unequal ratio among the 119 counties of this Commonwealth must come about in large part for the reason that many counties are not fully aware of the purposes and accommodations of this Institute and its capacity. The new building makes it possible to care for one hundred new inmates, and it is right and proper that counties which are not now represented should have all information which will give equal opportunity for them to send here any proper subject within its border.

Desiring that you may give these facts such publicity as you may think proper and with great respect, By Order of Kentucky State Board of Control for Charitable Institutions.

Albert Scott, President.
Geo. B. Caywood, Sec'y.

CIRCUIT COURT.

The case of the Commonwealth against John Henson, charged with the murder of S. C. Early, at Flat Luck, last August, was taken up last week and a jury from Laurel county was empaneled to try the issue, as follows: J. T. Jones, S. Sandifer, Mat Farria, Willis Pearl, Enos Grabeal, W. T. Cole, J. A. Gregory, J. G. Carter, W. D. Wadkins, Frank Ward, L. C. Morgan and Mat Morgan.

The Commonwealth concluded its direct testimony Wednesday at noon, and the defense began to introduce their witnesses, and will possibly consume the remainder of the week. The end of the trial will not be reached before some time next week.

Easter

By W. B. Hesbit

He is Risen.

"I the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, I saw Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulcher."—Matt. xxviii, 1.

Spoken a d frankincense a d myrrh,
And spices savory and sweet,
They brought unto the sepulcher,
To lay them at the wou ded feet.
Their precious gifts their hand between,
Thy came in that first Easter dawn;

And she who was called Magdalene
Before the other hastened on.
But at the door of the spices s'pp'd
From hands upraised in reverence,
And to the ground, unheeded, dripped
Spikenard, and myrrh, and frankincense.

With finger on her lips, she tried
And in a whisper tense with awe,
With eyes that in their rapture burned

She told the glory that she saw,
The tomb again with holy light,
A radiant one of gentle voice,
Whose lustrous wings were jewel bright,

Whose lips made music, thus:
"Rejoice!
Your hearts no more need fear,"

And one sat where had been his head,
Who said to them: "He is not here,
For he is risen, as he said,"

Then, turning back upon their way,
They sat the r feet; and then the sun
Flung from its arms the Easter day,
As bright as was the shining one,

And she that was called Magdalene
Paused, for before the sepulcher
A lily, stately and serene,
New-bloomed, flung, back the dawn on her.

A FAMOUS HYMN.

How Ira D. Sankey First Sang "The Ninety and Nine."
The religious faiths of the world have produced many remarkable and beautiful lyrics, such as Newman's "Lead, Kindly Light," the "Nearer, My God, to Thee" of Sarah Flower Adams and Cooper's "God Moves in a Mysterious Way." Many of these were written under peculiarly dramatic circumstances, as was particularly the case with those by Cowper and John Henry Newman.

But, wide as have been their use and their application among Christians of all creeds and sects, there is one hymn that overshadows all others, whether we consider its widespread popularity or its wonderful religious power. This hymn is "The Ninety and Nine," by the late Ira D. Sankey, long the musical associate of Dwight L. Moody. These two men together were the greatest soul winners ever known, and the success of their united work was undoubtedly largely traceable to Mr. Sankey's songs in general and to "The Ninety and Nine" in particular. Its unique origin has often been described, but will bear repetition:

"When leaving Glasgow for Edinburgh with Mr. Moody, Mr. Sankey bought a penny religious paper. Glancing over it as they rode on the cars, his eye fell upon a few verses in the corner of the page. One day they had an unusually impressive meeting in Edinburgh, in which Dr. Bonar had spoken on 'The Good Shepherd.' At the close of the address Mr. Moody beckoned to his partner to sing something appropriate.

"At first he could think of nothing but the Twenty-third Psalm, but that he had sung so often: His second thought was to sing the verses he had found in the paper, but how could it be done when he had no time for them? Then a thought came—to sing the verses he had found in the paper anyway. He put the verses before him, touched the keys of the organ and sang, not knowing where he was going to come out. He finished the first verse amid profound silence. He took a long breath and wondered if he could sing the second the same way. He tried it and succeeded. After that it was easy to sing it. When he finished the hymn the meeting was all broken down, throngs were crying and ministers were sobbing all around him."

Hundreds were converted then and there, while in subsequent years other thousands of souls were gathered in through the singing of "The Ninety and Nine."

Clearly the song was the result of a sudden inspiration so far as its musical setting was concerned, and it may be doubted if there was ever a similar case of spontaneous and subsequently successful composition.

"The Ninety and Nine" literally sang its way around the world. The simple paraphrase of the Scripture parable appeals to "all sorts and conditions of men," and the world's hymnology is the richer for that Sunday afternoon inspiration in the Scottish capital which came to Ira D. Sankey.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The Rat and the Swan.

During a dreadful storm, when the river Tyne had flooded the country all around, a number of people were assembled watching the huge masses of hay swept along in its rapid course. At length a swan came in sight, struggling sometimes for land and at others sailing in its stately manner along with the torrent. As it drew near a black spot was observed on its snowy plumage, which the spectators were astonished to find was a living rat, and it is probable it had been borne from its dwelling in some hayrick and, seeing the swan, had hastened to it for a refuge. On the bird arriving on land the rat leaped off its back and scampered away, but a man having no respect for the sagacity which the rat had displayed killed it with a blow of his staff.—London Chronicle.

Carrying Out Orders.

On Lord Dufferin's estate, near Belfast, there once stood a historic ruin, a castle which had been a stronghold of the O'Neils. One day Lord Dufferin visited it with his steward, Dan Mulligan, and drew a line with his stick round it, telling Mulligan that he was to build a protecting wall on that line. And then he went to India, feeling secure as to the preservation of the great historic building. When he returned to Ireland he hastened to visit the castle. It was gone. He rubbed his eyes and looked again. Yes, gone it certainly was, leaving not a trace behind. He sent for Dan and inquired, "Where's the castle?"

"The castle, my lord—that could tell you. Sure, I pulled it down to build the wall wid."

Death of the Sun.

Mathematicians differ as to the time of the extinction of the sun's light and heat. One of them declares, "At all events, it seems that radiating energy at its present rate, the sun may hold out for 4,000,000 years or possibly for 5,000,000 years, but not for 10,000,000 years." This authority claims that the sun has already dissipated about four-fifths of the energy with which it was originally endowed and that it cannot possibly be run out beyond a number of million of years, which can certainly be counted on the fingers of both hands, maybe on the fingers of one.
